Stripes is a series of digital works that explores color as both structure and perception. Each work presents horizontal bands in a 16:9 format, derived from Instagram Story screenshots collected by Sandri from his followers between 2023 and 2026. Through processes of extraction and reduction, everyday digital images are transformed into ordered chromatic sequences, emphasizing color as material and data.

Rejecting narrative and representation, the works operate through repetition, seriality, and systematic variation. The bands may evoke landscapes, horizons, or spectral phenomena, but such readings are fleeting; meaning emerges through looking rather than symbolic content.

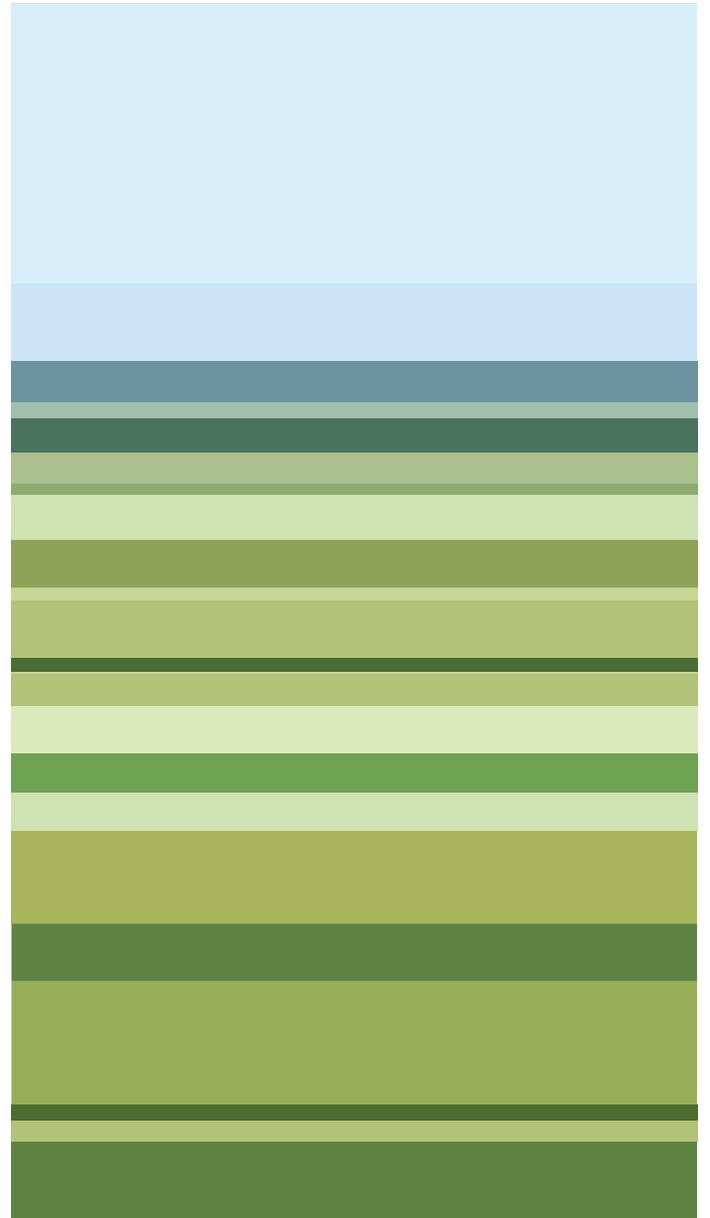

---

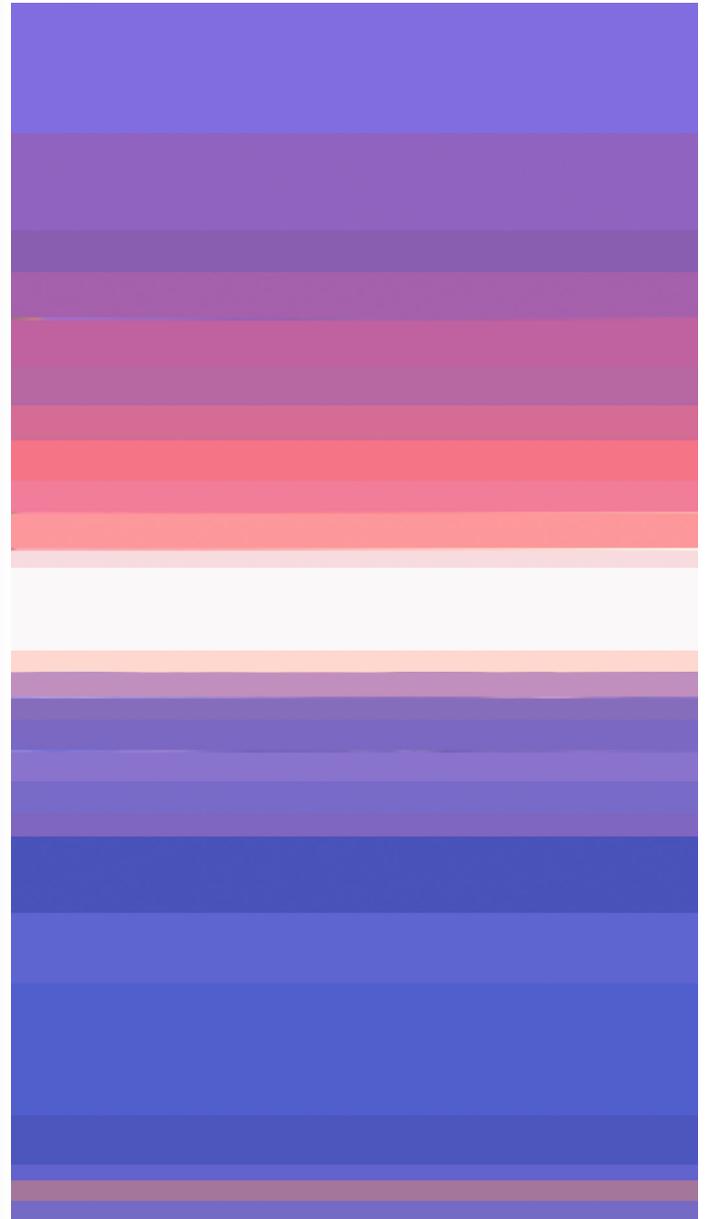

Situated within the legacies of Minimalism and Systems art, Stripes investigates reduction, structure, and the point at which form becomes experience. The 16:9 format is central, reflecting contemporary modes of image production and consumption. Within this frame, apparent simplicity reveals subtle perceptual shifts, as the interplay of system, color, and constraint transforms perception into the primary medium.
